- 2 WHEREAS, Georgia has a rich personal and public health heritage, the latter dating to the 3 founding years of the Georgia colony; and
- 4 WHEREAS, Georgia wishes to continue that heritage by strengthening the state's health 5 infrastructure from health professional education through quality personal and public health 6 services available to all citizens; and
- 7 WHEREAS, the Georgia health system must respond to new and serious national health 8 emergencies, a growing population, the threat of infectious pandemics and new infectious

10 funding from all sources, and dangerously significant variations in core public health 11 protection and access to services between counties and regions; and
- 12 WHEREAS, the delivery of behavioral health and developmental services to those 13 individuals with serious disabling conditions is an essential component of any state health 14 system; and
- 15 WHEREAS, the mission of advancing and protecting the health of the public can most 16 efficiently and effectively be addressed through a collaborative process involving 17 representatives of state, county, and community health agencies; private health professionals,
18 hospitals, and health facilities; emergency management and homeland security; the Georgia
19 Municipal Association; the Association County Commissioners of Georgia; and foundations 20 and other groups focused on improving health; and
- 21 WHEREAS, Georgia's health system is fragmented in that certain health functions, including 22 public health and mental health, developmental disabilities, and addictive diseases, are 23 assigned to the Department of Human Resources and the administration of the Medicaid

1 program and certain other health functions are assigned to the Department of Community
